

Notice for Web of Science Access

The first login for full access to the Web of Science database must be made from the University network (faculty internet connection).

To keep your account active and maintain access to the database, you need to log in from the University network at least twice a year.

Access:

Web of Science Core Collection: www.webofscience.com

A multidisciplinary research database covering 22,000+ high-quality journals selected through strict editorial criteria supporting your researchers in literature reviews, citation tracking, and discovering research trends.

Important: Make sure to log in via your organization's network or remote authentication to benefit from full access.

The starting Web of Science page will be like this if there is no access to WOS.
